

GOING green

Vintage finds and soft colours make a calm haven for Lisa Campana's daughter Rosie. Here's how she got the look...

LISA CAMPANA

What do you love about the nursery?

'The reading corner with the rocking chair. When Rosie was tiny I sat there to feed her. Now we sit and read to her every night.'

What was your biggest priority?

'Style. I couldn't find anything I liked in the shops so almost everything in Rosie's room is secondhand, so unique too.'

Did you have specific ideas?

'I wanted natural colours and textures and Ursula has achieved that with the wooden floor and the sheepskin rugs. I love the green – Ursula showed us how we could add either pink or blue accents to it once the baby was born.'

URSULA WESSELINGH (INTERIOR DESIGNER)

What was your inspiration?

'Lisa and Andrew asked me to design a modern, non-twee nursery inspired by nature in terms of colour and texture. The wallpaper tree was a focal point.'

What is your favourite part of the design process?

'I love getting to know my clients and coming up with a concept that captures their hopes and dreams. And of course I love seeing their happy faces when it all comes together.'

What are your address book secrets?

I source from the high street, online boutiques and I love mixing in vintage – from markets, as well as family heirlooms from clients' attics.'

THE BRIEF

A NON-TRADITIONAL BABY ROOM
INSPIRED BY NATURAL COLOURS

'It was important to keep the original features of the house like these gorgeous tiles'

Mirror, £170, Heals

Lamp, £60, White Rabbit England

'Ursula suggested clever 'baby-proofing' touches, like the edge on the shelving, which means that Rosie can't pull books off onto herself'

Changing mat cover, £18.95, The Little Baby Company

Storytime rocker & stool, from £940, Nurseryworks. Reupholstered in Prestigious Textiles Oxford Plains Grass

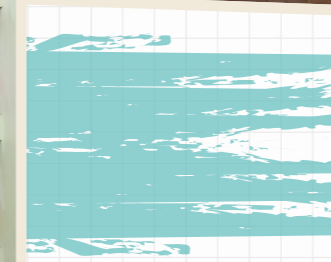

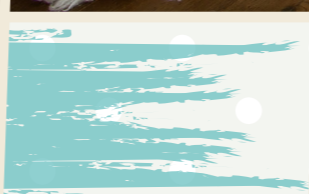

Cooking Apple Green paint, £35.50 for 2.5 litres, Farrow & Ball

Wallpaper tree, £189, The Little Baby Company

Sleepi cot, £490, Stokke

Wall stickers are a great way to add interest to a blank wall – they come in lots of sizes and prices to suit all budgets.

Sheepskin rug, £23.99, Ikea

HOW TO... MOUNT A WALL STICKER

- Prep the wall by cleaning it so the sticker will lie on a clean surface. Leave to dry thoroughly.
- Plan in advance where you want the design to sit. Make little markings so you have a faint guide of where to align it.
- Peel off the backing, making sure that the decal doesn't stick to itself as it might peel off the design.
- When you're sure you've got it in the right place, press down the top edge onto the wall. Take your time to smooth out the rest of the sticker against the wall so there are no bubbles or air pockets.
- Finally, remove the clear tape. Peel it off at a 45-degree angle. In the event some of the decal sticks to the clear tape, repress it to the wall then continue to peel off and discard.
